Dissatisfaction over signing Dunkel Draft

5330. SHRI GOVINDRAO ADIK : Will the Minister of COMMERCE be pleased to state :

(a) whether it it a fact that the opposition parties are making a lot of hue and cry over singing of the Dunkel Draft under the GATT;

(b) if so, the details thereof and reasons therefor;

(c) what are the merits and dementi of singing of Dunkel Draft under GATT accord;

(d) whether Government propose to propogate among the masses of the country about the merits of the Dunkel Draft through an effective media and offset the propaganda of the opposition parties about the demerits of the Dunkel Draft, if any, about which the people of India in general and agriculturists in particular are in total darkness; and

(e) if so, by when, and if not, the reasons therefor ?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF COMMERCE (SHRI KAMALUDDIN AHMED) : (a) Yet, Sir.

(b) The main points of criticism relate to the possible reduction in agricultural subsidies, minimum market access commitments, adverse effects on the public distribution system as a result of the Agreement on agriculture; patenting of seeds and increase in the prices of medicines as a result of the Agreement on TR-IPs; and the entry of multinationals into all areas of the economy as a consequence of the Agreement on TRIMs and the back-loading of the textiles Agreement.

(c) The Uruguay Round results will establish a rule-based multinational trad ing system with expanded coverage. This will on the whole be advantageous to us in increasing our exports. There will be increased market access opportunities for Indian goods as a result of lowering of tariffs and the phase out of Multi Fibre Agreement. The Services Agreement would also provide export opportunities. The rules governing the multilateral trading system have been strengthened. Though we will be required to amend our patents regime, there are safeguards in the Agreement against the abuse of patent rights by the right holder. The use of price control measures is also not prohibited. We have flexibility to devise our own sui generis system of plant variety protection with provisions for farmers and researcher rights. In the area of agriculture, our development and public welfare policies will not be constrained.

(d) and (e) Government is educating people and removing misapprehensions about the Uruguay Round Agreement through the media.
